If anyone knows what the problem can share it with me, hope you can help.

Permission denied. I think I am missing something but nothing comes to my mind. Note that I am able to stream online using Medialive but when I download the music the song is completely distorted and looped and stuttering. This is a problem that I am facing since I have Windows 10 and some of the free Android apps crash when I try to download my music. I also have some problem with download apps such as Whatsapp or Gmail. The only thing that works is the Youtube app but even there the music is looped and it stutters. Can you please help me. A: I had the same problem and I fixed it using this app. This will remove any bad bitrate from the song and they will be merged properly. I hope it will help you. Enjoy.

Fluorescent and confocal microscopy is a method of microscopic imaging of biological tissue and cells in which a fluorescent dye is used to image a specimen. To provide high resolution images of cells and cellular organelles, a microscope objective of high numerical aperture is used, typically of 50× magnification. The lens in front of the objective magnifies the specimen and decreases the working distance between the front of the objective and the specimen. This often causes the specimen to contact the front of the objective, resulting in damage to the specimen and/or specimen preparation equipment. To avoid the contact between the front of the objective and the specimen, the front of the objective is located at a distance from the specimen, typically in the range from 30 μm to 200 μm. This distance of 30 μm to 200 μm is referred to as “working distance”. The working distance is typically adjusted automatically by the use of a piezo actuator. The purpose of the piezo actuator is to move the front of the objective closer to or further away from the specimen. If the specimen contact occurs, the front of the objective is moved closer to the specimen. The objective lens in front of the objective lens is positioned at a distance from the specimen. However, the specimen position is not adjustable. This causes a need for a constant position of the specimen. This drawback is not preferred, as a constant position of the specimen is not always possible.
