pervert the imagination Summary: in the process creating something new, the designer of this new object and she's about a re imagining it's not just that she's restructuring it and it's better. It's also that we in the audience are paying attention to it, to her. We don't just watch some woman draw a comic book, we're looking at it in a new way. But in that moment we aren't looking at the comic book or the drawing, we're looking at the combination of them together. We're looking at the new object, what she's created for us, and we're feeling that new feeling for a few seconds before we go back to watching the movie or reading the book. That combination creates that new object in our minds and that's why it's called design. design magazine | if you are the copyright owner of Reinventing Comics by Scott Mccloud, register it.
