It measures the price of a basket of goods and services sold in Canada. The July 2014 report found that the overall cost of living for the GTA, based on the average of the CPI from January to June, was up 3.9 per cent from June 2013. Across the country, the average price of major housing goods, such as a detached house, rose 1.4 per cent in the second quarter compared to the previous three-month period. Price of average home rises The average cost of a detached home in the GTA rose 3.6 per cent, to $1.5 million. The price of an average home in the province increased 2.2 per cent in the second quarter of 2014, compared to the same period last year. But prices in the GTA were more than four times higher than the national average. The average cost of a two-bedroom detached home in the city is now $2.14 million. Annual price change The overall CPI for the GTA rose 4.2 per cent in the second quarter, compared to the same three months in 2013. The index also rose 1.9 per cent in the province over the same period. "Once again, the price of many goods and services increased, led by shelter. It's no wonder our overall inflation rate is higher than the national average, as it includes household spending on shelter," said Scotiabank senior economist Jennifer Berglund. "Canadians should expect this price trend to continue in the coming months." Berglund added that interest rates in the second quarter were at their highest level since July 2009. "Given the rise in mortgage rates since July, we can expect the pace of house price increases to 2d92ce491b
