After reading the post about people who have never driven a stick (at least in one car) having trouble, it makes me really wonder how I'm gonna get along with my 7 year old daughter. At first I was thinking, "ok, I can give her lessons on how to drive on her own in the city". Then I thought, "umm, no, that's not really a safe thing to do". Then I thought, "yeah, no, that's not gonna happen" I know that I'm sure the same with my 4 year old son, but his reflexes are already a bit better so it won't be as much of an issue for him. So what do I do? Is there any good course you can take (book or class) to make driving safer and easier on yourself and your kids? My ex used to take his 8 year old daughter to lessons with her every other week. Unfortunately she was a big over-accelerate and revvie type who'd 2d92ce491b
