Q: Stubbing unit tests against a mocked object does not work as expected I have a problem where I'm trying to stub a mock object for the purposes of testing. But this does not seem to work in my situation. When I want to stub this method for testing (which uses a mocked object), I get the following: I have an object called the_service. This object creates a mocked object called the_service_mock. I want to use the_service_mock instead of the real object to be tested. There's probably some simple mistake that I'm missing. Any help would be much appreciated! UPDATE A.m file of my code: #import "MyService.h" #import static MyService *the_service; static id the_service_mock; @implementation MyService + (void)initialize { [super initialize]; the_service = [[[NSBundle mainBundle] loadNibNamed:@"MyService" owner:self options:nil] objectAtIndex:0]; the_service_mock = [id mock]; } + (id)the_service { return the_service; } @end A.h file of my project: #import @interface MyService : NSObject - (void)testmethod; @end The.m file of the real class I'm testing: #import "MyService.h"
