Percutaneous vertebroplasty (PVP) is a novel method of treatment for painful, osteoporotic vertebral compression fractures. To assess the safety and effectiveness of PVP for the treatment of painful osteoporotic vertebral compression fractures. In a multicenter, prospective study, patients with osteoporotic, painful, vertebral compression fractures were treated with PVP (n = 84) or with conservative treatment (n = 51). All fractures treated with PVP were percutaneously injected with polymethylmethacrylate (PMMA) with a mean volume of 2.2 cc +/- 1.1 (range 1.0-4.8 cc). All conservatively treated fractures were maintained on bed rest with analgesia. Clinical and radiographic outcomes were compared at 1-month, 6-month, and 12-month follow-up examinations 2d92ce491b
